Evolving Libraries, Enduring Principles

This spring’s LLA conference is on “Louisiana’s Other Side” -- downtown Shreveport, on the Red River. Check out shreveport-bossier.org and sbjunguide.com to learn about a warmly welcoming northern city. I hope, as you read this, you’ll think about which sessions to attend. Along with the usual Thursday afternoon fun of Meet and Greet with ACRL-LA, this year the Academic section is co-sponsoring Friday’s breakfast with GODORT (the government documents round table). The Meet-and-Greet goes on for a couple of hours, so if you want to attend a conflicting 4:00 p.m. or 5:00 p.m. session, you can still pop over to the section’s eating meeting.

And the programs! Academics have labored over some fine submissions. From a Google driver’s manual to the electronic conversion of UL-Monroe University Library to a free film showing, there’s something to interest you. Art and music, history and memoir, civil rights and historical depositories, ethics and empowerment, digital media and social media, public and technical services -- in short, a spring bouquet in Shreveport with flowers for everyone. Check the LLA website for the conference program and agenda.

Writer’s Block

A New Year’s resolution we still have time for is to reread the Code of Ethics of the ALA. As librarians, we “provide the highest level of service,” foster and protect intellectual activity, and advocate for fair employment conditions. In January, the ALA issued a strong statement supporting the freedom to publish and condemning the violence against French newspaper Charlie Hebdo. Included was this affirmation that “libraries and the press are the bedrock of democratic societies. Free expression is essential for librarians and journalists to do their jobs ... The ALA Library Bill of Rights and Code of Ethics embody these principles without apology.” Nous Sommes Tous Charlie, whether we approve of the paper’s content or not.

Centenary College  submitted by Kristi Kohl

Christy Wrenn, Director, has authored a children’s book, Rylan and Burt, published this past September. After hearing about her daughter Emelia’s tales of living on Elmendorf AFB in Anchorage Alaska, Christy created stories about her middle grandchild, Rylan, jumping on his trampoline, seeing a mother bear and cubs in the park, playing with his favorite cars, and other games. Christy wrote the story and drew the pictures in crayon as if Rylan himself had done it. Her second book of the Rylan Series will be published in summer 2015, Rylan and Henry.

Jo Ann Palermo joined the Cataloging Department in September 2014 as a General Catalog Librarian. She brings over eighteen years of cataloging knowledge, experience and expertise. She received her Masters of Library and Information Science from LSU in 2009. Jo Ann currently serves as chair of the Louisiana Public Document Depository Program Method Selection Committee.

On January 5, 2015, Aaron Richardson became University Archivist. Aaron previously served as Southeast Regional Archivist for the National Park Service in Atlanta, GA. A NARA-certified Records Manager, Aaron helped implement the Legacy Preservation Initiative - the National Park Service digital records management program. Richardson is a native of northern California, with a long family history in the state of Louisiana.

Kelly Blessinger was named Head of Access Services in October, 2014.

Stephen Bensman was named one of the top 20 librarian authors by the Journal Scientometrics. The study, “Worldwide Contributors to the Literature of Library and Information Science: Top Authors, 2007-2012,” by William H. Walters and Esther Isabelle Wilder, was published online in December 2014. The article identifies “the top individual contributors to 31 LIS journals from 2007 to 2012.” Out of more than 9800 authors analyzed, Bensman ranked 11th among librarians worldwide for articles in LIS journals.

Sigrid Kelsey was appointed to the Board of Directors of Friends of the Animals (FOTA), Baton Rouge.

Anna Burns, former director of the James C. Bolton Library, died at the age of 90 on December 31, 2014 in Alexandria. Anna was on the original faculty at LSUA, having worked in the library there from 1960 until her retirement in 2002, with the final 15 years serving as director. Anna helped establish the Friends of the James C. Bolton Library in 1996, and she worked with the group even after her retirement. She played a key role in the growth of LSUA’s library. When the school first opened in 1960, she found only two reference books - an encyclopedia and an unabridged dictionary - in the school’s library. By the time she retired, the Library had about 200,000 books as well as access to thousands of digital books.

Last fall, the Library collected exam copies of textbooks from faculty, sold the newest ones to BookSouth, and used the rest for a Christmas book tree. Now, there is a Mardi Gras edition of the lobby book tree.

Abigail DeSoto is the new Government Documents Librarian and FDLP Regional Depository Coordinator in Louisiana. She earned her MLIS from Louisiana State University.

Kevin Cuccia, Engineering and Science Librarian, received a $8990 grant from the University’s Student Technology Fee Board. Through the grant the Library was able to purchase a collection of engineering e-books from Momentum Press. The grant also included money for a subscription to Statistical Abstract of the United States and Statistical Abstract of the World.

This past Christmas several of the library faculty and staff came up with the idea for a different kind of Christmas tree - a book tree! It was constructed from a collection of donated books along with some of the library’s Leisure Reading paperbacks. Decorated with lights and ornaments, the tree was a big hit with all of the library patrons as well as the student workers and all who work in the Library. In addition to the tree, a fireplace was also “built” from old copies of Zoological Record.

Southern University at Baton Rouge submitted by Angela Proctor

The John B. Cade Library has an original manuscript collection of ex-slave narratives titled: Opinions Regarding Slavery. The collection was created and compiled by John Brother Cade, a former professor at Southern University. The Collection is a compilation of interviews with ex-slaves, initially begun as a study in 1929 under private auspices, when separate and independent projects were simultaneously begun at Fisk University and Southern University. The Slave Narrative Collection covers interviews conducted in 16 states, the Indian Territory and Canada: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Indian Territory, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma Territory, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and Canada.

The narratives are of historical value for they contain firsthand accounts of social conditions of slave life from those who had firsthand knowledge.

The collection is available online at the John B. Cade Library’s website, http://www.lib.subr.edu. For information, contact Angela Proctor at Archives@subr.edu or (225)771-2624.

Sharon Mader retired as Dean of Library Services on February 2, 2015, after nearly 15 years in that position. In addition to her responsibilities at UNO, she served in various capacities in the LALINC Consortium as an advocate and supporter of Louisiana academic libraries. Following her retirement, she has taken on a half-time two-year commitment with the Association of College & Research Libraries as Visiting Program Officer for Information Literacy, coordinating implementation and professional development initiatives for the new ACRL Framework for Information Literacy in Higher Education. For the Spring semester, she will assist with finalizing construction plans for the completion of the Library's 4th floor and she will also continue to serve as a member of the Friends of the UNO Library Board.

Florence Jumonville, chair of the Louisiana and Special Collections Department, contributed an article to the January issue of The Ephemera Journal. In “Going Shopping: Ephemera from Classic Department Stores of New Orleans,” she discusses the histories of three Canal Street stores - D. H. Holmes, Maison Blanche, and Krauss Co., Ltd. - and the role of ephemera in their business practices. Ten illustrations depict examples such as a Krauss shopping bag, Maison Blanche gift packaging, and a Carnival calendar that Holmes gave away in 1917, presumably intending it to remind ball-goers where to purchase their gowns.
