How to Get (and Keep) Your Library Into the Community Mix

Celise Reech-Harper, Associate Director, Beauregard Parish Library
“The library department…

…[is] like a biker gang, but instead of shotguns and crystal meth, they use political savvy and shushing.”-Amy Poehler (Leslie Knope, “Parks and Recreation”)
Be the biker gang. Use your savvy:

Be available to any and all.
Involve with community groups, non-profits, and small businesses
Keep updated on local civic and governmental wind changes.
Encourage staff and partners
Read the local papers, listservs, and newsletters.
Know Your Strengths

• What does your library have to offer?
  • Helpful Hint: The way this is framed will change based on whose attention you seek
  • Anything new?
  • Anything specialized?
Stay Flexible

- Do you have flexibility/adaptability?
- Does your library “seem” adaptable and approachable?
- Times of flux can be a great asset
  - Let groups (and individuals) know that they can shape their library
Stay Informed

- Read local papers AND newsletters
- Be active on the social media sites local agencies utilize most
- “Friend” community groups, local governmental organizations, etc…
- Visit area museums, art galleries, restaurants, performance arts buildings
- Chat with community movers and shakers
Media Relations

- Establish a relationship with at least one representative from each of the local media outlets
- Offer “sneak peeks” and advance notice
Keep Your Options Open

- Be willing and available to meet with different groups
- Publicize your availability
- Seek out new groups
- Open door policies work
- Offer library “goodies” and legwork
Recognize obstacles

• Be honest but positive
• Be transparent
• Respond to inquiries promptly (even when doing so is stressful or difficult)
• Acknowledge that you may not have all of the answers but will find them
Small Favors Mean Big Appreciation

- Take pictures at local events; share them
- Tag on Facebook
- Tweet @yournewlocalbestfriend
- Cross-promote
- Give people the “inside scoop”
Partners for Life (or at least the next project)

- Establish a respectful dialogue
- Convey appreciation
- Give public acknowledgement
- Provide honest feedback and suggestions (if desired)
Possible Matches

• Historical societies
• Civic Organizations: Magnolia Ladies, Rotary, etc…
• Government entities: Mayor’s office, city government
• Volunteer Groups
• Local and Regional Festivals
• Local small businesses (tread lightly)
Some of the Beauregard Parish Library’s Successful Matches

Staff Outreach

- Make it a competition
  - BPL SRP Color Dot Competition
- Personalize it
- Give praise
- Celebrate talents that go beyond job scope
  - BPL “From: Us, To: You”
Summer Reading Participation Results

- Across the board increases
- 72% indicated a color card (which means a staff member spoke to him/her)
- Completion for ARP was up 67%
- Increase in library card sign ups
- 200% increase in social media interaction
Top 5 Positive Comments I Didn’t Want to Hear

1. “Wow! I had no idea our library offered that.”
2. “We have a branch there? Great!”
3. “If I had known about this (event, service), I would have visited before.”
4. “Getting a library card is surprisingly easy.”
5. “You have a website?”
No takers?

- Find out what organizations need by polite inquiry or a little subtle sleuthing
- Find out when they meet and get yourself on the agenda
- Make contact with community leaders (not necessarily politicians or formal leaders—the people doing the heavy lifting)
Persistence & Patience

- Seek out new groups regularly
- “Check in” with established groups
- Remain polite and flexible when you hear “no” (and when you hear “yes”)

Actionable Responses to Interviews

• “More media coverage”
• Computer classes
• Seed exchange
• Programs for specific adult age groups
