State Documents News:

Margaret Lane reports the following:

In October, the editor of the Monthly Checklist of State Publications sent a letter to many librarians stating that the Library of Congress might possibly have to discontinue publication and asking for comment. ALA Government Documents Round Table (GODORT) sent a response from GODORT and the State and Local Documents Round Table:

"We are very concerned that discontinuing publication of the Monthly Checklist of State Publications will adversely affect bibliographic control for important state documents. It is true that bibliographic information for state publications is increasingly available on the national utilities and state-sponsored online databases. These sources of information, however, are fragmented at best and lack uniform coverage of state publications. There is no other tool comparable to the Monthly Checklist of State Publications that provides a single source for selecting or studying state publications. We oppose discontinuing publication of the Monthly Checklist of State Publications because of its importance to librarians, scholars and citizens alike. (Paragraph in original here) In your letter you alluded to "persistent budgetary restrictions" faced by the Library of Congress. When properly managed, a change from paper to electronic distribution of government information may provide significant cost savings. We encourage you to explore appropriate methods of electronic distribution of the Monthly Checklist of State Publications that would meet the needs of users and still reduce publication costs."

The Louisiana State Documents Advisory Council meeting was held September 9 and had a program on the services and publications of the Department of Economic Development, presented by Joan McGee. Weeding policies, core collection items, and the proposed state documents state plan were discussed. Virginia Smith, State Librarian, is chair. For more information, you may contact Ms. Smith.

Nunez Community College, Chalmette, has been designated by Thomas F. Jaques, State Librarian, as a depository for state
Last spring the Center for Research Libraries (CRL) made an application to the National Endowment for the Humanities for a grant to microfilm the House and Senate journals from the state legislatures. Louisiana submitted information to be included in the proposal, which would preserve these historical documents and make them available in complete collections for study by scholars and other citizens who might need them. Word has been received that the grant was denied. Patricia Finney, the CRL librarian who prepared the proposal, will be at ALA Midwinter in Philadelphia and will talk with State and Local Documents members about future plans for this project.

Federal Depository Library News

Howard Coy, Jr at the Vernon Parish Public Library reports:

We have been cataloging all of our federal documents on Supercat and sending them in for inclusion in LAsernet. We are cataloging all documents with Dewey Decimal Classification, with the exception of some periodicals and vertical file items. All items have SuDoc number added as title entry, so they are fully searchable on LAsernet. For serials, the stem is used. most of the documents are also searchable by author, title and subject as well. All are available for interlibrary loan. Folks, they are also adding CD-ROM documents as well as other CD-ROM products.

Howard has also designed a very good depository flyer which features the library's toll free telephone number and address.

Katie Nachod (Tulane Law) reported that they were moving over the Christmas break to a new facility. Their library will be located in the John Griffin Weimann Law School. Katie's e-mail address is Knachod@mailhost.tcs.tulane.edu.

Information Call:

Stephen Henson compiled a list of e-mail addresses in 1992. At the November council meeting, we discussed the need to update that list. To that end, I am asking everyone out there in Documents Land to forward me their current e-mail address. I know if you have an address from a private source, you may not want to send it for publication, however it will make communicating between members easier.

Send your e-mail address to chayes1@lsu.ccgt.lsu.edu or chayes6389@aol.com.

Thanks:

Special thanks to Margaret Lane, Lori Smith and Frances Skiffington for their assistance during the past year. Margaret was good enough to gather and send news items from the Baton Rouge area as well as items which relate to State Documents. Lori has been able to help revise the LLA GODORT bylaws and update the Margaret T. Lane Award criteria. Frances Skiffington has worked diligently to get the program planned for the conference.
