

"I am gratified to see that our section covered so many hot topics at our latest conference..."
 Nancy Colyar, Chair

Notes & Tracings

It's the end of another busy year, in the LLA Academic Section just as in academia in general. I am gratified to see that our section covered so many hot topics at our latest conference held at the Lafayette Hilton & Towers, March 3 - 6.

Some LLA Executive Board Activities

I thought you might like to know about a few items of business handled by the LLA Executive Board, where I have been representing you this past year. The Executive Director, Christy Oliver, left LLA in the Fall. The Board was pleased to find Beverly Laughlin to assume the position just before the annual conference. She couldn't have picked a better or busier time! She has prior experience on the Executive Board and other LLA offices. She is already hard at work learning the other details of the job, and working on the LLA Manual, the budget, and contracts for mailings and conferences. More recently, the LLA Office moved from Baton Rouge to Eunice, Louisiana.

Incoming LLA President Debra Rollins has recovered from a broken leg, and is on the fast track to getting her administration staffed and begun. She is looking for volunteers for the following committees: Continuing Education; Federal Relations; Legislation; Membership. Members can contact her at (rollins@iamerica.net).

There has been a contest held to select a new logo for LLA and the results should be announced soon.

Plans have already begun for next year's annual conference, March 6 - 8, 2002, at the Radisson Hotel in Baton Rouge.

Conference Report

We were fortunate to have Dr. Bill Nelson of Augusta State University in Augusta, GA at two Academic Section-sponsored sessions. "Partial Applications of ACRL Standards" covered a topic on the minds of many libraries' administrators. "GALILEO: The Georgia Consortium Experience" was interesting particularly to those of us in consortia in Louisiana.

At our Academic Section Business Meeting, we agreed by consensus to no longer produce this newsletter in print; rather we will announce it on the LLA and other appropriate email listservs, and post the newsletter on the LLA web site. We also agreed to lend our name to the LLA Grassroots Grant. We announced our incoming and newly elected officers: Lea Wade (UNO), Vice-Chair/Chair-Elect, and Deborah Poole (Loyola), Secretary.

Another session on a topic frequently in the news is ebooks. Just this past week, the vendor netLibrary announced the adoption of industry standards for netLibrary eBooks. Thanks to presenters Aimee Ficarek, systems librarian, LSU; Trudy Patterson, systems librarian, Allen Parish Library; Crystal Lee, director of learning resources, River Parishes Community College; and Gennice King, head librarian, Public Services, Xavier University Library for an update on the topic.

Copyright has also been in the news this past year, with all the news related to Napster. With ACRL-Louisiana Chapter, the LSU Libraries, and the State Library of Louisiana, we co-sponsored a well-attended post-conference "Copyright Laws in the Age of Technology". Our presenter was Laura Gasaway, director of law library and Professor of Law, from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. We would like to thank the USGS National Wetlands Research Center for providing the workshop location.

Fall Conference

Next year's joint conference with ACRL/Louisiana - LUC will be hosted by SLU on October 25-26, 2001, as Laverne Simoneaux will be the Vice President/President Elect of ACRL/LA for 2001/2002.

Final Note

I have enjoyed getting to know more of you from around the state over the past two years as your Vice-Chair and Chair. I send heartfelt thanks again to our Vice-Chair/Chair-Elect Fred Hamilton from Louisiana Tech who worked very hard all year to prepare and organize the Academic Section sessions for you. I am sure he will serve you well as Chair in the coming year.

Academic Section Outstanding Academic Librarian Award

This year's recipient of the Louisiana Library Association's Academic Section Outstanding Academic Librarian of the Year Award is Jill Fatzer, professor, Department of Curriculum and Instruction, College of Education, University of New Orleans.

Throughout a long and distinguished career devoted to public services, bibliographic instruction, and library administration in academic libraries, Jill has been an active participant in professional activities which have enriched the ability of academic librarians to enhance library services. In particular, she has been instrumental in developing cooperative ventures that have brought library resources and services to Louisiana's academic community. She was principal investigator for enhancing access to government publications by having catalog records for eleven Louisiana depository libraries added to the online catalogs of those institutions.

She has served the profession on the national and state level, serving on the board of directors of the Association of College of Research Libraries, the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant College's Commission on Information Technology, and as chair of the Louisiana Academic Library Information Network Consortium. She has served as spokesperson for the profession to various professional groups, including the National Council for Accreditation of Teachers of Education, as well as on other accreditation teams. ogy, including creatures both real and fanciful. Arranged like a bestiary, the exhibition will feature zoological art from the 16th to the 20th centuries by artists ranging from Audubon to Zimmerman. The first floor gallery will display "A Second Look: Louisiana Flora in the Works of John James Audubon and Margaret Stones." Audubon was known for his lifelike and life-sized renderings of North American birds, which were often portrayed surrounded by the flora of their native habitat. Interestingly, the backgrounds were not infrequently painted by others — among them Joseph Mason, George Lehman, and Audubon's long-suffering wife, Lucy Bakewell Audubon. This exhibition invites viewers to take a second look at the flora behind Audubon's birds and compare it with contemporary botanical drawings of the same flora by renowned botanical artist Margaret Stones.

ACADEMIC SECTION
BUSINESS MEETING
LOUISIANA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION
ANNUAL MEETING
MARCH 4, 2001
LAFAYETTE, LA

The meeting was opened at 10:00 a.m. by Nancy Colyar, President, Academic Section and Rebecca Stenzel, President, ACRL-Louisiana. Nancy and Rebecca both introduced current officers and newly elected officers for their organizations. Nancy also thanked the committees she had worked with this past year. Bob Heriard from UNO (Chair), Don Smith (ULM), and Wendy Johnson (RPCC) served as the Outstanding Academic Librarian Award Committee. Cecilia Stafford (Tulane), Mike DiCarlo (Louisiana Tech), and Marilyn Hankel (UNO) served as the Nominating Committee.

There was no "old business" to discuss.

Under "new business" Nancy announced that NMRT would no longer be sponsoring the Grassroots Grants and asked if the Academic Section would like to administer it. Since it would not cost the section any money, members agreed to the transfer. Susan Richard, editor for Notes and Tracings, asked if it would be okay to put the newsletter out on the web. Marie Morgan asked that members be notified when a new issue was published. Nancy said that could be done via LALINC-L and the LLA listserv. Susan also mentioned that her contacts at various institutions were not sending in "new hires" information.

Rebecca asked Laverne for a treasury report. Laverne said ACRL-Louisiana has money and that she had sold all of the directories. Rebecca said there were some more slots available in the copyright workshop. Next year's ACRL-Louisiana conference meeting will most likely be held in Hammond, La. at Southeastern Louisiana University, as Laverne Simoneaux will be the Vice President/President Elect for 2001/2002.
